Not much to show from side in this period. 😊

I read somewhere that markets are ranging 80% of the time and are trending the remaining 20% (Pareto 80/20 principle ?).

Now i see a period of strong and prolonged trends that are struggling to revert to the mean (i.e. our fib weekly pivot) and this situation is far from my ideal trading style because I'm not a good trend follower.

Yesterday after FOMC cut rate of 25 bp, the USD strengthened across the board and Mr. Powell appeared less dovish than expected when remarking that the move is not necessarily the start of an easing cycle.

I closed my AN long, one more week of work then a couple for holidays. 😊

Who would have ever thought we'd see such crazy moves in the markets in these last two days? I reentered my USD short last night after having my parachute stop knocked out. Now watching YEN crosses free fall like the thin liquidity day in January when they run stops. This is one problem with Forex no safety mechanism that halts trading. Although even with a safety mechanism once panic ensues there are no real differences except an orderly stepped meltdown. With commodities you can get in a locked limit down situation until the next day when the same thing occurs and trading on the markets can be halted only to resume the next day until halted again. An article from the WallStreet Window.

Well that explains the wild day today! I was actually busy in the brokerage this morning looking after things wondering WTF is going on? Looking at my charts off to the side, another "RED Herring" event nothing much in the Calendar kicking in yet today NFP tomorrow and everything starts going off the rails. The "Donald" effect strikes again! I'm working on my RV Van rebuild, I'm seriously considering screwing off and doing some GOLD prospecting in the next while if I can get the van wrapped up. I need to get a hitch for the front of my YJ then I can pull it behind me.

Nick, I was texting Stev1929 about trading that moment I saw the bottom fall out on AN. That is exactly what I said to Stev, WTF? Truly the "Trump Effect" is instantaneous and World Wide. Being on the wrong side of the trade, stinks. As to the gold prospecting, I'll go with ya, seeing how I started out as a diver back in 76, good luck.

Great! You are the only one who is reading the markets in the right way! No fanciful pattern ABCDEFGH ... against the trend chasing hypothetical retracements (or swings) to then accumulate only DD. Your approach does not follow the "standard" rules on Davit pivots but you are interpreting very well following the market trend by looking at the real price action. Markets are constantly changing skin and need to adapt.

Hey Fellow Pivoters,

A pdf summary of the Pivot Trading FF Posts here for July 2019:

Attached File

File 41 - Davit's Posts et. al. on his Pivot Trading thread-2019-07 Pages - 125.pdf 5.5 MB | 135 downloads

A few footnotes to all:

It was the hottest July in recorded history thanks to carbon-induced green-house effects resulting world-wide forest fires that can be seen from space - while the world economy appears to be getting coldest with the ever-growing limited world resources magnifying and likely hastening of total world famine.

"...in October that after a decade of steadily rising hunger, the number of people in the world who are chronically hungry crossed the one billion mark in 2009. The FAO estimated the number of people suffering from chronic hunger at 642 million in Asia and the Pacific, 265 million in sub-Saharan Africa, 53 million in Latin America and the Caribbean, and 42 million in the Near East and North Africa." (see <https://www.populationinstitute.org/...ine/issue/1/8/>)

I hope we do not eventually end-up pivoting off this green planet with our human greed stopping our need for the application of rational thinking, reasoning and planning by those who hold power. Otherwise, we will all be damned - and future generations !

IMHO, it is better to use money towards achieving world-order instead of wasting money-resources on nuclear armaments and space travels.

I am trying to keep some optimism that we will wake-up before it becomes too late to turn things around.

Peace to all,

John

Probably because the ADR is based on my brokers historical volumes...same as viewing a volume indicator, it's based on the Brokers volume, not the overall volume of the Forex market.....

Red flag event of the day. Trump speaks 1:45 NYT 10 to 1 we are going to announce the Europeans are being meanies, they are not playing fair! Boris and I are going to tag team them in the ring. blah, blah, blah. I had a EC long that I'd been in for a few weeks dumped it at a small loss in front of this. The only thing I'm left holding are some index shorts, USD short and 1 NJ long that I have virtually zero hope for in light of the current situation with the exception that my account is held in USD so perhaps if it starts its flailing downward spiral the Kiwi will hang in there. In light of whats been occurring lately I'm going to be curtailing my FX trading and focus on only quick in and out opportunities and leave no cards laying on the table.

<https://www.forexlive.com/news/!/tru...paign=02.08.19>

Here's a link to watch it live: <https://www.whitehouse.gov/live/>

And au contraire as to what was predicted as an escalation in tariffs against Europe by some news agencies it was a tactful positive announcement of a deal to sell more US beef to Europe with only a joke at the end announcing a 25% import tariff on all Mercedes.

DiamondMiner may have given you the original Pipsometer.

However, it is attached along with the original template downloaded February 2017.

The only absence is the FFCal headlines where the URL is not working.

EURGBP at an interesting location for sell, but i dont see anything on the calender to make it gain at the moment. I'd prefer to wait for GBP news on friday to see if it will give it some energy or if PA points to south before then, might jump in. Key level 0.93000

Small trade on Aussie started during Asia last night....very conservative because this was hugely countertrend....but turned out nice considering it was only for 18 hours or so....based on the Jan3 spike down..simply had to be orders down there...plus ADR was at +200% as I recall....anyway a nice little profit to pay for my vehicle servicing...lol {image}

Edit....not sure why the closed trades only showed .20 lots....this is the true picture..

Nice and only 2 trades! You got me beat for the week, I won 13 out of 14 for $616.88 I think you won on USD weakness over AUD strength. Hopefully the stealership doesn't take it all servicing your vehicle. 😊

Closed AN with a small Profit...it's all about patience. Davit's Philosophy works, the biggest key is be patient, provided is the proof. I haven't been trading much lately because of health issues, mostly studying to get better at my craft where time meets price. Historically I've made a lot more money with this method. Whenever I lost money it was because of my impatience not the methodology. When I deviated from the rules, I lost money, when I went back to the rules, I made money. Yes, there was DD but I noticed that in time everything comes full circle, most of the time. Watching different Time Frames for entry was imperative for me, my take is (the now, the small picture and the big picture). Posted below is my last 70 live trades.

EG on H4 ABCD Euro data late Thursday night GBP Data on Friday. It's touched halfway between R61 and R78 which in standard pivots is MR1. I'm in on a short sell.

Hi all, for those interested here's the last version of my DavitTradeManager_V1.

The only difference with prev release consisting in these two new params:

bool checkPercentageProfit = true;
double _X_PercentProfit = 5;

Therefore now you can set a TP level in % over the already existing one that set TP at a certain price level.

Here's in Davit's thread you can find a couple a posts with a short explanation of params:

1) <https://www.forexfactory.com/showthr...4#post11210694>

2) <https://www.forexfactory.com/showthr...5#post11220945>

Best regards,

Bubincka

I have been watching and trading Cad ever since last week on the short side.....the fundamentals are strong for strength against USD but Oil was holding it back big time.....yesterday the Saudi oil barons decided to prop up oil and the result on Cad was as shown....anyway Cad has been good to me this week....now I can afford a huge helping of Poutine...eh? Taking profits here as it retraced to the daily breakout point.....and red news tomorrow for Cad.....

I read that Crude Oil was starting to go up in price. Here is a nice correlation how commodities pairs CAD, AUD and NZD can respond with Crude going up in price or Price Action (PA) as taught by Davit here:

Nice comments...keep learning and it will all come together one day soon.....I too always noticed the strength of weekly pivots but really didn't know how to pull it together with price action and fundamentals.....Davit is a really fine teacher..."no-nonsense get it together" kind of guy...I hope he is ok since we have not seen him for a bit...but read his postings with a passion I would recommend.

Hi, guys, I was just doing my weekend analysis and prepping for the coming week. I will post some charts majorly focused on this thread. Namely UC, AC, EA, AU, GU, NU, AZ, EU. I do pattern analysis over the weekends. But after this thread, I am trying to incorporate Pivots, Charts are from Tradingview so I don't have the same template. The indicators provided do not plot next weeks pivots when markets are closed. Is there a workaround? Am I missing something? So I created a spreadsheet to calculate for me. I was having lots of work today so in a...

Just a thought, why not open a demo account with Oanda, download Nostromos pivots that plot the coming weeks pivots as well as the current weekly that we trade from and simply execute your trades with your trading view platform? That puts you on the same playing field as the rest of participants here and you eliminate the need to do all the manual plotting. A second computer perhaps.....anyway, just thinking out loud for what it's worth.....best to you...Ingvar ps...we really don't trade trend lines here, the concept is price action at pivot levels with fundamentals as the driver.....

{quote} I would love to know how you analyze. GBP has lost 7,148 pips as of this minute in the last 3 months, more than any other. Don Analysis is quite simple for a simple minded trader like me.....see the weekly pivot oscillation? Certainly not moving north, then the news on JPY and the reaction on US pairs...no sign of moving north so we enter very conservatively with small lots and add if we see we are still on the right side. I don't use stops so I keep tabs on a trade like this because as you say it has fallen a long way and subject to retrace.....

recap....price action around pivot levels, with fundamentals the driver (news in this case) and Brexit fallout still in reaction mode.

{quote} I don't have the time nor personality to do such a thing. I can't maintain it. I lost my mind quite publicly years ago on these threads and have not been back much since. I started a small group hoping it would help both me and them to become profitable, but I never did (although I can build stuff 😊), and the ones that were profitable didn't share with me, but carried my stuff away and either became wealthy and me not know about it or shared it here on FF without my permission. So I lost my mind and everything else and so what good...

Honestly I am not a fan of most chat rooms or threads, I only subscribe to this tread because it works for me, my personality and the fact I have proven the concept to myself over hundreds of trades. Haters are everywhere these days, loyalty to anyone or anything is scoffed at and misused and abused, integrity isn't even mentioned anymore in political or business circles, so find what works for you and stick with it.....we owe it to ourselves. Davit is the top ranked personality in FF and he didn't get there by offering a lame method, we see it working day after day.

Best to you....Ingvar

USD NOK Daily Crab USD is @ R61 oil inventory was a slight miss this morning. The pips on this pair are like the peso to enter a trade use a 1000 pip limit and stop then adjust your targets after. Although its not one on our list here, its one I've traded for several years. Price action is volatile so trade with caution, we are up at a high potential reversal zone here. I find there can be quite good movement on this pair. {image} {image}

Thanks for the pm this morning Nick.....not too difficult to see the relationship these two have to OIL.....starting to build positions on NOK at r61...and Cad

Agreed! I find the summer generally okay, just lower your expectations on a trade for pips. Probably after the first week in December its best to close all positions and come back around Jan 15th. Maybe look for some day trade opportunities but hold nothing. I made that mistake this year had a couple of trades I believe it was EA on Jan 2 got hammered on low liquidity and knocked out.

Honestly I gave up long ago trying to ride the coattails of MM sentiment. Its a chase that talked me out of good setups and chased poor ones.

Now I simply look for specific patterns to develop and then strike. ie: swing failures, etc.

My motto is simply this: As traders it is not our job to understand the whole market. Our job is to find an edge that allows us to extract $$$ on a consistent basis.

{quote} Honestly I gave up long ago trying to ride the coattails of MM sentiment. Its a chase that talked me out of good setups and chased poor ones. Now I simply look for specific patterns to develop and then strike. ie: swing failures, etc. My motto is simply this: As traders it is not our job to understand the whole market. Our job is to find an edge that allows us to extract $$$ on a consistent basis.

Im actually quite shocked at the accuracy of your trades.....and as I look through the charts I am finding some gems....ok this one is not perfect but Im on the right track with what you are trying to get across....instead of taking the short term view this gives a much better chance of return with a relatively small "investment". Huge thanks for pointing this method out....I was always fascinated with your posts but couldn't quite put it into practice but now that I can toggle through the charts a bit better it becomes easier....thanks again....Ingvar

I'm thinking you get the general idea. I usually wait for pairs that are extended late in the previous week, then look for breakdowns around Tuesday and Wednesday.

However EU was a good example of early week markup last week and swing failure this week.

Hey NimTrader,

I am just trying to look for patterns. But, some are just too close to WP area which makes risking trades if it goes against you. I really need to be more conservative and take trades more at the extremes of 61-100 Fib areas, especially with minimal Red News this week and the low liquidity with folks being on vacation in the July-August months. This is like trading during the vacation periods of December-January months.

So, I closed my AJ trade:

Attached Image (click to enlarge)

I am needing to just staying on the side-lines and not taking now as doing so during riskier months is reducing losing money !

I do look forward for the experienced traders here how they will interpret the coming week !

Later for now !

will probably bank this one as it stalls at the pivot.... {image}

The BIG factor this week for the USD is going to be FOMC on Thursday from Jackson Hole Wyoming when Powell speaks. I think USD is going to be sideways until they see what he has to say. They say the data for the US is strong. Personally I've not been experiencing it as I do brokerage in the transportation business. Rates are low, freight is slow, several trucking companies have shut their doors in the last few months. Another one ceased operations in California last week. This is not indicative behavior of a strong economy. I have one account that had their credit pulled last week, they have unpaid bills extending over 120 days owing 5 figures. They manufacture and ship building products and have been extremely slow this year. They ship to a major US nationally recognized building supplier, so if this data shows housing starts up, building permits up, why are all the shippers of these materials so slow? I believe some of this data we're seeing is about as reliable as GE accounting practices.

Well here is "range trading" on UJ so far - apparently "ranging" is the most frequent pattern and one that Davit mentions to be one of his favorite set-ups. So, I am shorting UJ now as it swinging south again:

Traders...you have no idea how good an indicator Romanov102 is sharing with you. The trucking industry is a sure indicator of the strength of a country like Canada or US...especially the US. A good friend of mine is a shareholder in H and R transport (the red transport semi's all over North America) and he can verify that the economy is extremely vulnerable in the US.... doesn't matter all the puffing coming out of the White House....the markets are nervous, investment is very cautious and that all spells trouble on the horizon. This week in Wyoming will be very interesting indeed.....Ingvar

Hi guys it's been a while, haven't seen a trade that was jumping out at me but still looking. For those who enjoy reading back issues Traders World #33-40, most people do not read, if they only did they'd be surprised on what was directly under their own nose and never knew it. In the old saying, "when the student is ready, the teacher will appear". Allow me to tell what that means, "You are the Student and You are the teacher" because all knowledge is known by the Universal Mind. Ask it, seek it, and it will appear. Personally I like reading about Gann, Gartley and Elliott and their work and how it effects us today in trading, I find it inspiring, but that's just me.

Meanwhile, it just seems that the Trump effect has stymied some of the markets... there is talk of recession, however I believe it's just propaganda started by the Left, Democrats and Chinese for political purposes as all three of them are afraid of Trump because he blocks their Chaos & fear agenda to which they thrive upon. It would be virtually impossible to go into a recession with GDP looking good, Unemployment the lowest in decades, Manufacturing industry is coming back, Wages are rising. This guy knows WTF he's doing and he will break the back of the Dishonest Chinese Govt. I say they cave before he does. My take is nothing much further will be ruffled till after Christmas Holidays.

You get the idea. Just don't pull the trigger to fast at the start of the week. Price may always try to retest latest swing, sometimes multiple times before failing.

I usually wait for PA well into late Tuesday-early Wednesday sessions (NY time).

IMO USD may be quiet until tomorrows meeting FOMC minutes. However...there was a nice 4H swing failure on that pair you're talking about.

Excellent clarification....yes I felt I was getting in too early and that is why I pulled the trigger at Pivot as it bounced...I had all my profit taken last week when it bounced off the R38 as I was just getting to know the nuances of trading NOK.....Yes, the four hour failure is a good sign and will be watching....thanks again!!

Anything can happen...but major trend shows GBP strength not weakness. You may get a small pullback but it may be short lived.

Never ever i read with respect all your posts here, but trading any R/S 68 to 100 rejections with no clue (as many do) to me makes no sense....

I think it had more to do with Johnson meeting with Macron today. Macron stating that UK withdrawal agreement can be amended. Removes some uncertainty which is good for the pound.

Thanks Cryptosurf,

I see this now...I was already buying the GU based on obvious technical strong support at 1.21. I should have predicted positive talks for a need to keep a mutual agreement and to go slow with the Brexit deal or any other agreements so not to negatively affect UK and the rest of the European economies.

I am very glad that you are here sharing your expertise on Forex fundamentals and the technicals as well - I am impressed with all the talent here... I am sure Davit would be excited and proud how well all you gifted contributing Pivoters have kept this super-important FF Thread alive !

Cheers !

Yeah cable has been on my radar for awhile waiting for a bounce. The daily and weekly have been forming a bottoming pattern (for now). But this could change at any moment. I have a few live squawks that keeps me up on the latest.

Keep in mind that a lot can happen before this eventually came true.
I try to focus on swings. 25-70 pips (per position) is enough to me.

Quoting Davit

agree it also makes you approach trading like a job. You hit certain number then its fine time to let go. Another trade another day.

About 70-80% of forex is not trending which means holding a position hoping for home run is against you statistically why trend traders are often in DD and this DD can get very large. Not ideal approach. We focus on swings!! Can't state this enough Swings!

NU at current level, i would prefer to buy the dips, rather than sell it. 🤔

The Chinese are big forex traders. I wonder how many BILLIONS they made this morning by positioning themselves before announcing the tariffs? The Chinese also trade lots of options on forex. I find this website useful they give a breakdown of FX options expiries you can sign up for free and get a daily email from them or just look at their website under the more tab on the top right side forex orders. I like to know the levels and mark them on my chart even though its not a news event quite often after the expiry especially if it expires close to a level you can see 20 pip or better moves. This is useful to know when a pair is looking good at a particular pivot point levels. Sometimes price will get pushed prior to 7 am to defend the option.

@Romanov102.....I know and appreciate you like to build things and I appreciate your attention to detail...That trait probably helps you in trading and it's obvious in your posts. You live in one of the most beautiful areas in Canada and I lived just 1 hour south of you in Victoria for over 10 years, up at Bear Mountain golf resort. So, you may appreciate one of my paintings that depicts what is locked in my mind....the rolling hills, the beautiful sun sets and the almost desert landscape where I lived. I always felt I was on vacation when I lived there so I call this painting "Three Weeks Vacation" and It reminds me of the Island every time I enter my home here in Lethbridge. Anyway, just an after market comment, I paint while I trade, it really helps me keep things in perspective.....Ingvar

Thats awesome....read everything you can from Davits postings and others who have been with him for years....this method really works if both fundamentals and price action are in sync. Caution though....certain currencies and crosses do not work well over the long haul....your first one is one of them..Gbp/jpy, as well as chf and crosses...there is a reason and your reading and reasearch will tell you why. Thanks for posting and look forward to more in the future.... 😊

ps....moving averages only confuse the trader with this method and are not necessary

Just thought I would post my trading page for Crude if anyone else trades this beast, using weekly, and 4 hour pivots. The 4 hour chart uses weekly pivots as is the format in this thread.....but oil is the mother of all movers and responds to shorter time frame pivots during the most active of trading sessions being NYMEX that begins trading at 9 EST. With S and P and Dow falling off the map on Friday, and market nervous today more opportunities presented themselves.

At 9 today the S and P was already pulling back, Crude was trading at the 4 hour resistance, on the 5 minute chart crude had a late 4 hour markup to R78, opened to a failure at R38 and began to pull back.....should have loaded up but being conservative as I tweak this method. So, this post was just to show another way to look at the market.

Even on vacation, reading the thread from time to time, I saw that Davit has been absent for a long time and this has never happened before.

Not knowing anything, everything can be and the lesser evil would even be a burned/damaged account, even if this last hypothesis does not seem plausible to me because Davit, in addition to having considerable equity, was very attentive to risk management which in fact is one of the pillars of his strategy.

Whatever the reason for his absence, I hope he and his family are well.

Anyone watching USDCAD ? looks like a strong Resistance on that area. {image}

USD is being reluctant to rollover and drop. CAD news hasn't been that great lately. MR Pink Socks and his crew of windbags has been busy running the economy right off the rails. Screws a pipeline project up for 3 1/2 years and then gets it going right before the election after a 100,000 plus oil workers have been off the job . I guess he's hopeful peoples memories are short. A typical politician, been screwing us hard and increasing taxes and then wants to brag about how he's helping the middle class grow. Bringing in refugees by the tens of thousands who are happy to take our jobs at half the price or lie around on welfare.

This is called my MIXED MESSAGE trade....on one hand West Texas is up strengthening the Cad....on the other hand we have Boris Johnson (save me from another politician with bad hair) causing a reaction on GBP. Anyway there is lots of room to the upside on the weekly....so technically the hourly's hit a late week markup then failing this weeks R38 zone....so all that looks good but beginning to think I should take some off the table and see from there....Any input from other traders is most welcome.....have a look at my trading page and tell me what you think....(be careful though as I am fragile..haaaaaa)

Looks good. My larger view on the pound is bullish. I like the bottom pattern forming on the weekly. However there may be some turbulence (as we witnessed today) over the next month or so. If Brexit is delayed again (signifying uncertainty) then I would look for further downside.

Edit: It would not surprise if price retested the previous low on the weekly as well.

Thats great to hear you feel that way, keep refining your trading!

Word of caution though.....chf pairs and crosses are not recommended trading in this thread for a reason...if you read from the 1st page on you will see why.....

I see you have a full lot pending...what happens if your wrong??. My point is if we make small entries and add too them as price action dictates instead of going all in all at once.and you take the approach that is taught by Davit, you can be wrong and still have a good average to be able to hold until the trade goes your way....just saying....

believe me we have all been there where we are so sure of our entries we go all in....only to find out a Central Bank or hedge fund intervenes to crush our "sure thing" entry.

Don't let my comments dampen your confidence please...they are meant to save you some pain...😊

I believe in Davit's absence his thread should be respected. Look at the rules on page 1. Lets stay away from new indicators etc. Speaking of indicators here's a video on the TDI indicator. Patrick from Vegas has an interesting series of videos I like his chess theme pawn takes King.

Thats great to hear you feel that way, keep refining your trading!

Word of caution though.....chf pairs and crosses are not recommended trading in this thread for a reason...if you read from the 1st page on you will see why.....

I see you have a full lot pending...what happens if your wrong??. My point is if we make small entries and add too them as price action dictates instead of going all in all at once.and you take the approach that is taught by Davit, you can be wrong and still have a good average to be able to hold until the trade goes your way....just saying....

believe me we have all been there where we are so sure of our entries we go all in....only to find out a Central Bank or hedge fund intervenes to crush our "sure thing" entry.

Don't let my comments dampen your confidence please...they are meant to save you some pain... 😊

I believe in Davit's absence his thread should be respected. Look at the rules on page 1. Lets stay away from new indicators etc. Speaking of indicators here's a video on the TDI indicator. Patrick from Vegas has an interesting series of videos I like his chess theme pawn takes King.

Good video...have watched him before....but nothing beats pivot trading imho and when one trades using Davit's methods it becomes very profitable. I look at the market with a new set of eyes since trading this method.

Yes I feel the thread should be respected, and without Davit's presence I do not feel comfortable posting as much as I have been so I am going to hold back until I hear different. I hope there isn't a tragedy of some kind that has caused his absence, maybe he just needed a break...I hope that is the case. It also seems many of the regular contributors have also disappeared or at least have stopped posting...maybe they are aware of something we are not...anyway, I will update my Cad trade at this point because it truly was motivated by pivots, price action and fundamentals...no way to dispute that. Im a little underwater with NOK but manageable at this point.(..aahhh.... the wisdom of entering small until the true picture comes to light....a very wise entry system Davit!!!!!!)

Hi Swede,

I'm enjoying your posts and they've been very educational for myself. I've prevented myself from posting until I seriously hone my skills like other's here. It's great to see some of you still posting in Davit's absence. Keep up the great work.

Also been enjoying the 'CryptoSurf' trade of the late markups and 38 failures. Excellent stuff!

Cheers,
Ben

the audacity of some knows no bounds,

Please use my template and indicators so we can be all on same page

Offenders using other indicators will be removed without notice

no wonder Davit has gone to quietly do his own thing Go with Good Fortune and Good Health

Well as I mentioned Aug. 27th about this China deal not passing the sniff test, others are beginning to notice as well. Now, I am a firm supporter of Trump, everyone knows that but you know like I know all politics is Smoke and Mirrors(what you see is Not what you get).

Trump lies and China obfuscates

ANALYSIS | 37 minutes ago

Outlook:

We continue to think it's foolish to consider the latest development in the trade war as anything positive. Trump lies and China obfuscates. China has a small hammer to hold over Trump's head because of his lie about China calling to resume talks, but it may be a feather. Trump says he is "winning" but in reality, China has made no concessions at all. The only thing resembling a concession is its refusal to retaliate against the newest US tariffs—arriving Sept 1—for the moment. It is also setting the yuan at non-confrontational levels, although that's so subtle it's not clear Trump can see it.

China wants the US to remove some or all of the tariffs in order for talks to have a chance. The US wants China to change its way of doing things, like subsidizing state industries that export things like steel to the US. Neither side is likely to get what it wants and the fuse is still lit on the dynamite. Nobody knows when the explosion will come, but come it will. We guess China is buying time. What for, we don't know. Moving supply chains and production to other neighbors, maybe. Building even bigger trading relationships with Europe.

It's the end of August, most people are on vacation. Besides, all the smart money is in bonds right now. It's a great time to take a break. I'm sure he'll be back.

Hi John

Here's a couple of EU charts a weekly and a H4 with a pending ABCD pattern. USD has been resilient lately. Have a great Labor Day long weekend everyone! NFP next week and some RED flag CAD news.
