Hello Diggz, hopefully you're doing good.

Needless to say that you've been of great influence and help when it comes to how I look at charts, thanks for saving me like you always say "20 years of duking". Though I am still not getting optimal results or results at your level of expertise, that's understandable given my experience but I've some questions that I'm hoping you'll be able the answer.

Though I'm pretty much aware of how the market works and have a good enough idea as to what it is probably going to do, breaking down the charts all the way from monthly to minute. I need your help regarding your mention of shekels and runners.

Here's a one hour chart of BTCUSD, could you please mark the areas of where you distinguish between shekels and runners. As in where exactly to enter and exit when it comes to both. You can use your own chart as well. And again, thanks for everything that you do, your time and knowledge when it comes to trading is greatly appreciated. 😊

Exactly what I thought, though it seems I'm always looking for the perfect entry. Appreciate the answer, good to know that I'm looking at it exactly as I should. Though I don't use any levels and indicators. I think the levels themselves can be pointed out using a naked chart if one sees and understands how the price moves. And about BTC, once you go BTC, you never go back. Like you always say, the label on top is just that, everything else is exactly what every other symbol does. Again, one thing is for sure, scalping(your way of entries, not all that confirmation garbage that is taught by supposed gurus) is the only consistent way of making money. Thank you, managed to get it to work though. Just the template needed, you see, I took a trade today, Sell at 1757, based on time and price action, Thursday/H&S on 1 Hr and 15 Min, however I wasn't sure as to why price formed a pattern there, then I look at your chart and see LW Low, and then I figured, I can't remember all the levels just through price action. Although price is what makes levels, a human mind is simply not capable of memorizing every damn one, especially dynamic levels. Personal opinion obviously.

To be quite honest, I stopped using my brain which was trying to outsmart the market in order to conjure up absolutely nothing of value and started drawing lines according to the charts, horizontal ones that is. It goes like this, Monthly - Weekly - Daily - Hourly(Entries, usually taken on 15 Minute, based on Hourly H&S). However, the time factor is as relevant as lines.

For anyone reading, actual algorithm of markets is based on Levels and Time, learn a pattern, just one and like Diggz always says, it's always the shoulder. Only this way will you get that +1 SL every damn time. You'll need chart time, actual chart time of around 3-4 years/10Hr/Day.

Don't waste your time with trend-lines, indicators, YouTube videos etc. Personal opinion obviously

On a side-note, get your math right first. learn compounding and you'll understand why Diggz's 90 days 30 Dollars, 10%/day will make you a fortune.

Don't cheat, you start with 30 Dollars, 10% a day on XAUUSD should be 0.01 Lot X 30 Pips and so on. 10% a day sounds tough but it isn't as long as you respect the process and mathematics. Stop loss should never be more than 15 -20 Pips unless exceptional cases and times arise, though take it from me those exceptional cases are not for 100-1000 dollar accounts.

If you can consistently(9/10 times, no garbage 60% hit-rate that they talk about on YouTube) get +10 Pips with a SL of 15 Pips, you're there, if you need 80-100 Pips of SL, then sorry to say, you'll eventually give it all back. Work on your entries, work hard and make use of your brain and let's stop being slaves to the ones who created this in the first place.

Credit goes to Diggz, without him, I wouldn't be here after just three years. Words cannot describe how much I respect this man when it comes to his expertise in this field, especially being a farmer and that too a proud one. {quote} Hey B.Mir, IMO trading with 15 or 20pips SL at certain times of the day when theres usually big volatility can be risky and your SL will easily get triggered, even if you got the direction right. I'm talking about gold ofc, might work on other slow pairs. I usually use wider SL, but I never use a set SL for every trade. I adapt the SL to the market volatility and the level playing out. Take care
H, good to hear from you again.

Here's the thing, there's no volatility(though it sure looks like market is doing crazy things), it just moves fast depending on the range. When I say 15-20 Pips of SL, it's an emergency SL for me. It never really goes beyond 10 Pips, more importantly that SL is to cover for variable quotes in a "volatile" market. Slow pairs? I don't trade anything except XAUUSD/BTC/US30.

Why do we always see Diggz emphasize on "Nice quite Asia", well in this business, we play to our strengths, not weaknesses. That manipulation usually happens in NY session. So don't trade NY if you can't place 15-20 Pips SL and profit consistently.

More importantly, for everyone reading, the market is a graph of Price action and time, for those who understand graphs, we know, both the variables are equally important. If we focus just on Price action, than it'll be random, you will never memorize a pattern, because those are indeed random. What I mean is, H&S failing, fake-outs and all that garbage happens because we don't focus on time. What suddenly worked yesterday, doesn't work today and so on. Each day, each hour and each minute is important. What happened on Monday, Tuesday, will follow suit. Again, focus on time, nobody does seem to but in my opinion, as a student of mathematics, a graph simply cannot function with just one variable, it won't make any sense.

When you understand the algorithm, you'll predict the moves each minute, not leave it like that and hope. You'll know instantly whether you're wrong. Doesn't take more than 5 minutes for Price action to go to +0.10 Break Even SL. Plus the "room" Diggz mentions is also based on relevancy of time.

Rest, this is not to say, that your method or anyone using Trend-lines, Indicators etc doesn't work. Of course they do, Aussi and others are proof of that. Just that what Diggz is trying to teach you is actual algorithm, not guess-work. It's not easy but you'll be astonished to see how structured it is once you get the hang of it.

An example: Look up XAUUSD chart, use an hour time-frame, and look for just H&S, H&S doesn't necessarily have to be from a forest view, a combination of three candles is also an H&S, study the shoulders and see if it ever goes beyond 20 Pips. Study Diggz's charts, especially the charts where he shows his entries. Study his profitable charts, memorize the times and entries. Like the market, Diggz's entries are structured, they are never really out of the time-zone. This is what I used, Price action and patterns is easy to learn, how to get that "random" factor out is by combing time. Simple as, I know it isn't but it at least can be, with proper guidance.

Again: H&S, Time, Levels(quarterlies are most important) and patience, in this order is all one needs. Quarterlies as in, if a price moves from an abstract value of 1-10, you look for Buys at 2-2.5 and Sells at 7.5-8.

Side-note, good to know that Aussi has recovered. Hopefully the journey from now on will be as smooth as it can possibly get.

And sorry for being a leech for far too long. I've been meaning to write a monologue in order to thank each one of you that has been beneficial, never got the time. From now on, if I can be of any use, I'm here.

{quote} Cant really agree there but each one have their view on how to manage their orders and SL. For instance, I went long like 15min ago, if I had a 15-20pips SL I'd had been stoped out. Instead I gave it a little more room, being a nice level down there: WP and Weekly open, besides daily levels. That alowed me to close some bangers and keep some runners protected. {image}

Because in this instance, Time Factor beats Price Action. It was not the time for Sell. You've to combine both Price action and time for precision. Price action alone is good for scalping on higher time frames, however you'll not achieve Diggz's level of consistency, every day

Chart time, take notes, you won't be able to remember everything. Watch what Price does at certain times/certain sessions/during news etc for at least a year and a half.

We'll see what comes out.

They have separate jurisdictions(loophole) if I can recollect correctly, regardless of who you end up choosing, choose a broker which is reliable, tight spreads(-0.00 - -0.10 pips). For example, in the screenshot you posted earlier, you are 41% in drawdown the moment you enter. However, with a relatively tighter spread, you can lower that down to 17-25% including commissions, not to mention the advantage you'll have with tighter spread. In layman's terms, it's easier for you to manage your trades and for your trades to go in your favour with tighter spreads. Good luck

Well, to be quite honest, I do get where they come from, not that I agree with them but I do see why their actions resemble of trolls.

For example, when I first got a glimpse of your charts, couldn't understand a thing. Plus the way you write, even though you always answer any question asked of you, the answers however make no sense to people who don't understand "farmer lingo", that was the case with me as well. In fact I thought you were one of the trolls like most end up thinking. Even now, I don't understand your "lingo" fully. After giving you a try three or so years ago, I gave up, thinking you're a self boasting/glorifying troll after a couple of weeks.

Came back a month later, what was the reason? I wanted to see if you have a Ponzi scheme(signal/course service) just to satisfy my market-ass-kicked ego. And guess what happened? I still couldn't understand a damn thing that you were writing or posting. However it was clear you didn't charge money. Got me hooked because you were trading large lots. Looked at one of your charts, understood may be 30-40 percent of it. Looked at your large lot entries, started deciphering slowly and steadily. Here we are.

You have to excuse these people, the forum is filled with scammers/ blood soaking leeches with absolute zero sense of morality. They didn't even feel ashamed ripping off a 65 year old woman(a member of this thread). How do you expect them to take any one of us who are trying to genuinely help seriously?

As long as our conscience remains clear and we do it for the right reasons, no troll or a supposed student will gratify our ego. We know why we are trying to help others, at least I know.

Later, have a good weekend

{quote} 1803'ish is January low? If that's it, then I don't get why January low and not another months low is significant I see your charts now - its roughly yesterday's high
Look at the charts, each year, each month, each week, each day is structured, you've to first understand the structure of all of these in order to know which level to use or how levels are formed in the first place. Everything that I see and look for, is on my charts.

Price > Levels > Time > Patience. For example, if 1800 is yesterday's high, that's your level. You don't trade immediately, you wait for Price/Pattern formation and then Time. Price could form a pattern at 1803 or even 1798, doesn't matter, it'll not always be at the exact level, however regardless of where the pattern forms, your entries will be in perfect. Like I said, first Price, then Levels, then Time in this order. Don't skip or interchange any one of them.

Last weeks low - Yes. Probability 90%

Yesterday's High - 50/50

Daily H4 - Garbage level, don't trade. Probability 30%

Missing - Session Knowledge, Time.

Last weeks low + Yesterday's high + Session Knowledge + Time - ~99% Probability.

This is how you break down your chances of your trade's profitability

Hi B.Mir ! I'm sure you haven't read Aussi wrote on the first page, have you? All trades, charts that Dig shares are just for us to learn more. My English vocabulary is very limited because I come from a country English is not common. So, I just observed, honed and read carefully questions of muchine asked Dig. I gradually learned to analyze and understand the process of Gold. Dig's diagrams have always inspired me, and helped me learn a lot about model geometry. Thanks to dig, I was inspired with spatial geometry. You shouldn't think negatively...
Hello, hope you're doing well.

I wasn't referring to you or anyone in particular, I was referring to the forum(ForexFactory) in general. Again not based on my emotions but based on the law of averages.

We analyze things based on statistics, and in this instance, the stats are completely against FF, for every Digger1, there are 10000 Leeches, and I'm being generous here.

Nothing against you, people who are or do good things, don't do it to satiate people's desires or their own, good people don't value people opinions, they do it for a greater purpose.

They do it for their conscience. Simple as.

Hope you learn and end up being successful like with all the "good" people

Look what happened, did I use any indicator? God no.

Why and how did I know? Again, get rid of any garbage that you watch on YouTube from your mind. Learning how to use the MT4 terminal is all YouTube is good for and that includes learning about Lot sizes and the rest.

People who make YouTube videos and claim to know that they have it figured, here's the truth, you would be more interested in earning money from the Market than through Google AdSense. Actual people who know how this is done, have done their hard work, blood, sweat and tears are sacrificed in the process and you think they will make YouTube videos or sell signals for 200$ a month on Telegram. Yeah, sure. They will never share their best thing with you, ever, period, unless they live for a completely different purpose.

Why am I then trying to give away my knowledge and that too for free. I'll let you know soon enough and that will quite possibly be my last post here as to be quite honest, I don't have that much time to spend in forums/or the Internet in general.

{quote} Thank you B.Mir Adding to Mr.Joker's post before your last post on this great thread: 1. How do you manually calculate L3 and H3? 2. Are these L3 and H3 same as the Daily, Weekly and Monthly Quarterly as in the first 2 charts of your post 26,314 <https://www.metalsmine.com/thread/po...2#post13701282> / and Post 25,922 chart <https://www.metalsmine.com/thread/po...9#post13682939> ? 3. If not (2) above, what are they, and how are they calculated? 4. Are they(L3 &H3) different from the L3 and H3 in Camarilla... Look up my charts, you'll get an idea as to where to draw them.

The levels differ from any indicator software drawn levels.

Even with all due respect to Diggz, ensign messes up the levels by 20-30 Pips every now and then, not good enough for me, hence I learned to draw manually. Look up Diggz charts, ROVR is usually the culprit, it doesn't line up with actual price action, always. Sometimes differs by 20 Pips.

Hence the emphasis on drawing and learning to draw them manually.

Hope that answered your question

Okay, here we are, this is going to be long so bear with me.

Trading aside now, you all have been given supposed the holy grail, hah, the actual working of the algorithm, apologies to the new ones PMing, I have already had multiple video sessions with more than 10 members of this forum. I don't have any more to give when it comes to this aspect, plus I don't have the time for it, that's why I took the time to post and trade live with you guys today. Humbly speaking, read those 30 or something posts and then put in the work. There isn't anything else you need, and for the love of anything that is to be loved. Stay away from things which make you think you're stupid or you're not good enough. Your mind does and will figure out a way if you get that salve mentality garbage out of your head. Start fresh, start by investing time on a naked chart. Find those trails, as if there were no moving averages, fibs, stochs etc. A human being is the greatest specie and creation because we possess meta-cognition. That's the reason we can survive in Sahara as well as Siberia.

Now to more important things. Why did I share that with you especially with the people who I spoke to directly, again let go of it, you don't owe me anything and you never will, I didn't do you a favor, you don't have to thank me any further, never been a fan of complimentary work, rather I fulfilled my obligation towards you.

You see the dystopian world that we live in? Where every movement of ours is a result of a grand scheme of the supposed people of power in charge. Hell, we are programmed in a way that even the way we think is based on certain choices and decisions that we have to take. Every damn thing that we do in this supposed modern world is an absolute farce. I have a problem with all of it. Be it the education system, the government, the banking system, the financial market, woke brigade, general lack of morality, gender neutrality, transgenders, work over family values, obscenity, general lack of awareness/consciousness, selfishness, lack of empathy, forced vaccinations. I could go on and on and on and yeah I should know, I wasted 20 something years of my life getting supposed quality education in engineering, philosophy, psychology, not to forget, the CCIE, CISSP and MCSE, why? Because who wouldn't want to work for Cisco and Bill Gates's Microsoft. Get real, do you guys really think someone who was programmed into thinking that this world is a competition where only the fittest and hardest survive will share the best materialistic thing he possess? Hence the selfishness of people these days, Oh, you guys have no idea how much time I wasted getting these pieces of paper, all of those are absolutely worthless except the purpose that they serve, keeping one a well paid slave for n number of years to his masters. At the end of the day, people don't have any choice, they have to obey their masters or they won't be able to even feed themselves and then they have the audacity to gloat about their freedom of choices. Which given the natural resources of this planet shouldn't be a problem. Our planet is capable of providing for 21 billion people by the way, yet look at how many people starve to death. Where is the justice system?

We have become so unaware of ourselves, that our definition is based on these dystopian choices. Oh, my name is X, I have studied Y, I work for Z, really? This is what we were supposed to be? We are so unaware and so much in ignorance that forget living, we don't even realize or think about what's waiting us, the absolute truth for all of us, death. If a person is unaware of his soul/body/health/limited intellect being temporary, I wouldn't know what to say. Over the past couple of years that I have known you people, I don't even know your actual names, Diggz with his back issues, his own admission on his time ticking, his daughter, Aussi with his recent admission, Dingo with other things and a lot of others in general. We all suddenly become well wishers and rightly so but deep down we know the next one may not have a positive outcome. Yeah sure, we are all going to die but for what? Was it to trade? Earn billions? Be great mathematicians, engineers? Etc. No. Our purpose of existence cannot be as shallow as that, there has to be a meaning to all of our existence, even death should have an answer as to why it happens. Do we even have a purpose? It would have killed me inside if I didn't share that with you guys before I left. I saw Diggz give and share his best, I just couldn't be a leech and leave in oblivion. Hence the reason I'm sharing the best thing I possess and without it my existence would be pointless with you, it's my understanding of the human being's purpose, at least my objective purpose which would seem a subjective purpose from people with different ideologies, thought processes. Now, different people with different ideologies, religions, atheists, agnostics or whoever else exists may and will disagree but their is no compulsion you see, all I had to do is to put forward my message. I'm not interested in changing/converting/debating people. That's not my priority at all. I tried to keep it as simple as possible and leave philosophical discourse on the side.

Financial freedom can get your soul out of that slave shell and then make you think about what's really important. And the more people who are not sheep, the better.

My definition is not someone named X with multiple degrees, accolades to his name or even someone who can make a billion dollars, from a certain culture and so on.

I am a massively flawed willingly submissive human being to the One Who created me and His Will. That is the only definition I see fitting for myself and only one I will ever use to be identified as. I helped all of you for Him(royal Him, my creator does not have a gender/possess human qualities/properties). I'm not a good person at all. May be by helping you just one sin of mine in my whole life of sins will be forgiven. That's my hidden agenda. I believe in divine omnipotence, omniscience and omnipresence, as well as transcendental morality that flows through Him. I try to live my life and improve myself each passing day accordingly with constant failures. I don't follow any one else, do not and never will bow down to any human being, be it the royals or even the supposed hypothetical king of the world even if consequences were fatal. That's how strong my faith is. You can take my wealth, my health, my blood but not my faith.

Anyway, I wanted to write a lot more, never can put into words though.

I wish for all of you the best of health, happiness and more importantly objective peace. May the One Almighty Who created you, if He does indeed exist, guide you to the right path, get you back to that innate Fitrah truth and help you find that purpose of life.

Apologies if during this time I offended anyone with my words, was never my intention.

Peace Be Unto You.

There are no general times, time relevancy is based on Price Action.

The above tip is valid for Today only, it was decrypted based on Price Action.

Look at Price Action, see what it is trying to tell you.

In general, NY Stocks Open is a garbage time to trade, skip it, you've many other times when the market isn't supposedly "volatile".

Again, Price > Pattern > Time > Patience.

Learn actual Price Action, not Double top/bottom garbage. A tip - indecisive candles(example : open 10, high 19, low 1, close 13-7) are most important.

For this tip alone, I can charge a million dollars but why would I when I can make more than that?

I'd like to say here, you need to be very mindful of language. People need to learn context and how this concept changes when you go from the 'real world' into trading.

For eg. 'price action' is just language. Words. Fad trendy language. The context of a double top is the most important element. When I was learning it was just called 'resistance', be it upper or lower. But still some sort of resistance is pressing on the situation that's stopping it from continuing on.

From me to you, what is an indecisive candle? I know what they are but when language is used with people learning, more predominantly than context, then confusion or arguments ensue. If what you are talking about is a "doji" style interval/period and all the "other" types of fancy names people LOVE to give these things, then I would say Naaah. Inside that period you have buying-selling-selling-buying etc etc etc. Trades opened and trades closed. Even on a 1M or 5 Tick interval. So to me there is nothing indecisive on a chart or within a period of time or price. It's the same re: people obsessing over "should I trade with a 4 or 5 digit broker?!" 5 digit prices are not prices at all. They are rational percentages of a price. In the real world they don't exist. So context.

Price in context of time in context of movement in context of day/week/month in context of real life. When you stare at a chart too much you actually believe IT is real life. Scary.

For me, fad price action is just silly. There is no real context there.

Just my input.

My motto = Learn or don't learn. Don't copy, learn.

Of course He does exist, however you fail to realize that what may be objective and an objective opinion for me may, and is subjective to other people. Hence the "if", the if here is a philosophical neutral, more to do with solipsism.

Regarding your reply, my Creator doesn't have a gender, no sons, daughters, spirits. I'm a Muslim, not anything else. And yeah I don't respect your opinion for obvious contradictory reasons, I'm not a hypocrite, because if you're tolerant of everything and love everything then you stand for nothing and actually do not love anything, I respect the fact that you can and are entitled to have a different opinion on a same subject matter though, I wanted to be clear here.

However I do not want to dwell more in to the "why's" of it even though that is my actual Job, helping people understand the Logic of Creation, because this is a trading forum.

For people who are interested in finding more about the "creation" part, I'm always guarding "A Long" and "A Short" on "Goose" with an AWP, use Mir to find me there. Hah.

PS: For people who can't find me on Dust II or couldn't understand the reference above, PM. Because like I said, my Creation, Purpose, Objective transcendental Morality is my Job, not making money or having friends, family and everything else put together, they all play an important part, however God's Will, will always be on top of the hierarchical table.

I'm really truly sorry but that is not indecision. That is clustered market activity. You know when the spread shifts up and down, that is transactional in nature and action not just to look pretty or to confuse. Both of your deep oval shaped highlighted areas are POP (Profit on profit zones). NOT indecision. Maybe to you they're indecision as you don't understand what is happening there. But please do not mislead people.

POP = Profit on profit = Participants are gearing up for the larger move up or down.

If you look at the range within those areas you marked, they're not going to be 0.5 PIPS or something like that from top to tail. You have measurable range. Measurable ups and downs. You have INTENTION.

AND you are talking about Gold, not some exotic that barely gets traded with a spread and range beyond tradable use. Sorry. Let's be truthful here.

{quote} I'm really truly sorry but that is not indecision. That is clustered market activity. You know when the spread shifts up and down, that is transactional in nature and action not just to look pretty or to confuse. Both of your deep oval shaped highlighted areas are POP (Profit on profit zones). NOT indecision. Maybe to you they're indecision as you don't understand what is happening there. But please do not mislead people. POP = Profit on profit = Participants are gearing up for the larger move up or down. If you look at the range within...

I said, indecisive candles, not clusters and I explained what they are, use your eyes, open them, read. "A tip - indecisive candles(example : open 10, high 19, low 1, close 13-7) are most important."

Whatever they are to you, post charts, explain and help people understand them, I'm hopeful they will be very appreciable.

No interested in this discussion anymore, later.

What's your account size? How do you calculate your Lot sizes? You have too many entries.

For example, if you have a 100 dollar account, 0.01 - 0.02 is your safe bet. However you would need a 50 Pip swing in your favor to get that 10% a day. If that's it, your entries should be at best a couple of 0.02's. One closed after 10 Pip profit, one kept running.

For me I prefer, with a 100$ account, 0.03 x 30 Pips for the initial 10%. Single entry of 0.03, close 0.02 after 10/20 Pips, leave 0.01 running. With a leverage of 1:500, you can have a leverage of 1:100 - 1:2000, this principle would still apply.

Be careful with a lot of entries, especially on a phone, it messes your head and your account will drain if they are not calculated according to margin.

Margin call and account bust is never really that far

Use any compounding site, enter 100 as initial deposit, 10% per day and see what your Lot size should be for 35 Pips of profit in order to get that 10% a day.

{quote} hello b. mir, thanks for sharing your insight here. may I know if you re-enter after got stopped out? or you wait until the next set up? thank you.

No, usually when I know there's a higher chance of a bigger move, I close my initial entry with profit(80% of entry) leave 20% there with a SL of 15-20 Pips, then set +0.10 Pips SL later.

Example, enter with 10, close 8 with 10 Pips profit, leave 2 there with SL of 15-20 Pips. With this you're still in profit, given you know your entries.

I do not like multiple entries, for variation in price as well as precision. I prefer to enter 10 rather than 5 + 5. You can always close half or quarter or whatever.

Hopefully that was clear

Again, stopped out but still that +10 Pips profit. That's the whole point.

General Tip - Patterns are random, on how they form. Using the time advantage in your favor will get that randomness out. And that too for +10 Pips or at worst +0.10 Pips, don't get greedy and go looking for 50 - 100 Pips move(s).

* Plus the H&S that you're seeing is on a 15 Minute chart, look up Hourly and there's a bigger H&S contradictory to it.

Hello, tony, good to hear from you, hopefully that video session was fruitful.

You know that old age saying "there's a time and place for everything", that's what it was/it is/and it will be. Humans have emotions/sentiments, cannot be relied upon.

Market on the other hand, a graph of two variables controlled by an algorithm. You want to philosophize it, good luck, it will not and doesn't care. In this feild Math's and graph theory will come handy not philosophy even though I'm more of a fan of the latter.

Late Asia, when you had a sell entry at 1791.80(Monthly quarterly/Thursday/Late Asia), it started there. Deep in London, this is what the chart was screaming for. At least for me.

This forum is a cesspool most of the time, I don't/didn't want to post anymore but seeing people struggle when I have the answer that they are seeking, I just couldn't resist, probably saved many members from busting their accounts.

Given the requests I'm getting, I might start a new venture soon, no guarantees though, more importantly it'd be something where I control the content, I have had it with pie charts as Diggz rightly put it.

Little fun with averages for start of the week. {image}

Nothing to do with averages, they just happen to be at the place at the same time. Plus the more stuff one has on a chart the more complicated it gets. Hence the reason why that thing happens. "Oh, it worked that day, why isn't it working now, well, may be because the averages were not following the structure that time".

Good to see that your entries are getting better, decrypt them and answer that why question for yourself. Why did it work? Don't just think, it was a moving average reaction, it wasn't. That's why they don't work every time, structure and algorithm does do the same thing and work every time though. Not 1:2 RR or 70-90 % Win-rate, 99% win-rate with instant(hardly 5 minutes) +0.10 SL is what you should be targeting.

Again, rubbish. In a forum about money and numbers we don't talk about numbers because it's flaunting. Sure.

Three points for you.

1. Nobody likes you, to be more precise nobody is interested in your posts, at least in this thread. Classic bar example, don't want to extrapolate further as I don't want to encourage people into investing their time exploring that messed up field. In layman's terms, I don't want people thinking alcohol is somehow good for them.

{quote} Hi B.Mir, From your charts, what do you mean by actual weekly levels? From what I studied, it means some previous week levels at which price moved to when it expanded beyond last week high or low? Does this also work with daily levels when price goes beyond high/low? And how it connects with last week levels?

Yeah, pretty much, as long as price is in that Bigger structure, they will stay your weekly levels until it breaks the high or low.

Not daily, only weekly and monthly.

For example, week 1 price moved from 20 - 40 > your levels for week 2 are based on 20 - 40.

Now for the 2nd week > price moved from 25 - 32, third week's levels or smaller box are based on 25-32

Your actual weekly levels or bigger boxes are still based on 20 - 40, because price is still in that range, once it breaks it, they are invalid. So on and so forth, hope that was helpful {quote} So based on this example, once price moved beyond 20-40, will we go back in time to find the weekly structure to which it moved to and use those as actual weekly levels now? even if it is like very old? Yes, even if they are 20 year old levels. That's when your yearly and 10 yearly levels will come into play.

I would suggest learning mathematical graphs to get even more details about the market, at least on its behavior. Even though what I have already showed you all is all you need, yet no reason not to learn new things that make sense.

Okay, now to more important things regarding trading, pay attention, especially for the people who trade small lots. I know most of us start with 0.01-0.05 after burning our intuition based medium to large account.

Remember I said that I can take 10 trades a day, can even take 15 if I look at the chart for 23 hours that it is open, and yet I only take 3? Well, for an experiment, I did trade 10 times in this account as a member of this forum was asking for specific entries, but what I did was as soon as the trade was in my favor I put +0.10 Pips SL. All of them were +10 Pips trades, some of them were even +30 Pips at one point. Yet I was looking for those big 100-200 Pips moves. Guess what happened? All of them stopped out, now if I didn't have a SL of +0.10, what would have happened in the case of looking for big moves? All of the trades would have had a negative outcome.

If I didn't immediately put SL to +0.10 Pips, a couple would have been 60-70 Pips trades.

But guess what? You want consistency, all your trades should be winners, by how much, doesn't matter because you'll always get those 10 Pips every damn time and you base your account around those 10 Pips not 100 Pips.

When you have a day/week like this, where all of the trades are winners and that too trades immediately going in your favor, you've made it. Don't be impressed with a net positive outcome day. Work hard for consistency and this.

You day should look this +0.1 +0.1 + 0.2 + 0.3 this than +5 -4 +6 -8 + 10

Please pay attention to the times and price of the entries. Open up a chart and try to decrypt them, use only an Hourly and 15M chart to decrypt. 10 Valid inch perfect entries from Late Asia to Peak NY Stock Open.

{quote} Awesome B.Mir, how would one handle those unlucky rare few trades that don't give a chance to put in a b/e for what ever reason?

Your SL of 15-20 Pips will take care of that.

Plus don't rush, start with the demo account. Turn 30 to 300 using compounding and mathematical logic and you won't need to worry about those rare trades. You may blow 100, 30 dollar accounts, but it's the learning part you're after, don't cheat. Math doesn't let you cheat, hence my emphasis on basing you analysis around it.

Once you know what you're doing, you'll turn that 30 dollar account into 150000 in 90 days.

In the example shown in images, you start with 30 dollars, first day's goal, 3 dollars, 30 Pips for 3 dollars. What does that come down to?

3(0.01x10 Pips) trades or 0.01 x 30 Pips one trade. All the time with a SL of 15-20 Pips. Please tell me with mathematics how you'll get those rare trades or out of control account busting drawdown?

Good luck, before doing or going further in your trading career, understand this post. And this goes for everyone.

Don't think about things that don't need thinking, give your mind some rest.

{quote} B.Mir your time zone is GMT+1 or GMT+5:30? Exness broker time GMT+0, yes?

I don't know about specific brokers, for the same reason you mentioned, different brokers/different times. Hence the reason my actual time based chart is based on my local time, if I move to a different time zone, I'll just convert the local time zone. It nullifies all the broker garbage(different brokers have different days open and the rest for that matter, it's a riot). For example at 1 Pm my local time, if I am looking for a Buy it'll be same across all brokers.

My current local time zone is GMT +5:30, I'm in my home town.

{quote} I must apologise, I am not as quick on the uptake as others here ... yesterday, you said in a post that all times would be 00:00 GMT your broker Exne$$ and today you have very kindly given us all your times of trading (for me a bit blurry, maybe it is the black ink) but the broker is IC and from past experience I seem to remember they are GMT +3, so I am confused with the time map, is it GMT 00:00 Broker time or GMT +3 Broker time? Thankyou ... appreciated 😊
First of all, you don't have to apologize,

I never said GMT +0:00 or GMT +3, please re-read that post, I specifically mentioned that I have a time table based on MY LOCAL TIME, nothing to do with any broker, I don't monitor broker times, for obvious reasons, they differ, and are "confusing".

However, whenever you trade with any broker, the entries will have that broker's time(s). For example, with Exness, it will show the entry time as Exness has on the chart and same with ICMarkets.

{quote} Hi B.Mir, If i am not wrong, your initial sell entries at 10:27, they went like 30 pips against you.

Usually you said like 15-20 max. You must have had good reasons to keep it going 😊 Where would you have taken the loss if some random up move? Also, I took some buys there where you took shorts mostly due to patterns and level, although time was really bad. {image}

One of the best if not the best question so far that one could ask. My SL was 1746, in this instance it would be more than 20 Pips because my entry was not precise enough. When I mention 15-20 Pips SL, it has to make sense, it doesn't mean wherever you want. My actual entry should have been at 1744.40, SL is 15-20 Pips from precise entry point. You will not get entered at precision spots every time, market variation, human errors, etc. However you do know what those spots are, at least I do. Why I kept holding? Because I was sure of 1728(Weekly 50) at least today, bigger move, because of monthly H&S, look up my other charts for more info on that.

As I have explained to those who spoke to me directly in a video session. Your SL is based on precise entry points not where you enter. For example, if your precise entry or shoulder is at 50, your SL should be 52, if your trade was registered at 49, it will be 30 Pips, if it was registered at 50.5, it will be 15 Pips, if it was registered at 47, it will be 50 Pips and so on.

Hopefully that was helpful.

{quote} B.Mir why yours at level 50 on H1 when you have pattern H/S but mine way down 0.0 ,please be advise.Thanks

You have last week's levels or daily probably that I drew for you yesterday. Actual weekly levels were those, hence the 50 there. More importantly 1 Hour, 30 M or even 1 Minute chart has nothing to do with levels.

Once you draw your levels, you can use any time-frame you want to trade or see those levels. Just because I use Daily Candle, 4 Hour candles and so on for Monthly, Weekly levels, doesn't mean I trade using those candles. I trade using an Hourly candle, entries on 15/30 Min. Even on Monthly Levels, I have an hourly chart running. Like this.

Will not post for a while as it has taken a toll, explaining and drawing these charts is hard work, for my brain at least. I was not even able to play CSGO last night as my head was hurting. Which is to be understood as I don't do things in a half-hearted manner. I try to explain these things trying my best and it does drain you. I'm a human being after all and I know how pathetically limited I am. I was not even able to trade that last buy entry that I gave you guys, even though I myself gave you that, as I had a chart on, was drawing something for a member. And guess what in a couple of minutes, entering wasn't worth it anymore.

So on that note, I bid you adieu for the time being, hopefully you guys learned a thing or two while I was here. Wish all of you nothing but the best of both worlds.

Peace be unto all of you, even you Pistol Pete. Nothing against you Akhi. 🙏

No guarantees for being able to post again
